Applications and Enrollment Up in a Declining Market

The Challenge

Behind the ivy of the nation's most prestigious institutions of higher learning, the hottest topic, today, is the declining population of college-age students.

For some institutions, it means down-sizing, retrenchment and cutbacks. The news from Lycoming is good, however.

Over 60% of Lycoming's students come from Pennsylvania which expects a 15.7% decline in the number of high school graduates through 1994.

		Fall Term
	1988	1989	1990	1991
Freshman Class	304	324	340	360
Transfers	51	56	55	60
Returning Students	805	824	876	900
Total (full and part time)	1160	1204	1271	1320

To be sure, Lycoming must plan with these demographics in mind. Over 60% of Lycoming's students come from Pennsylvania, a state which expects a 15.7% decline in the number of high school graduates through 1994.

Demographic declines throughout most of the country, the increasing cost of higher education and the current recession have made colleges and universities everywhere scramble hard just to maintain enrollment.

Faced with such long odds, Lycoming College has not only maintained overall and new student enrollment but has actually increased both.

In just the past two years, applications have increased by a phenomenal 67%.

In just the past two years, applications have increased by a phenomenal 67%—from 860 in 1989 to 1440 in 1991—resulting in a carefully controlled 10% increase in the freshmen class over the same period.

The increase in the applicant pool is particularly important, because it gives Lycoming greater selectivity. For example, in just two years' time, the average combined SAT scores of incoming freshmen have risen 20 points. The average SAT scores of the class of 1995 are also 40 points higher than the Pennsylvania average.

A Total College Effort

When Jim Spencer hung up his coat in the Admissions House in 1989 as the new Dean of Admissions and Financial Aid, he already knew the challenges of a declining marketplace.

Potential students and parents are greeted in the reception parlor of the 1857 Drum House which serves as the Admissions House. Furnishings were donated by friends of the College. The clock and pie crust table were custom built by artisan Eugene E. Landon '57. The Drum House was used as the President's Home by Dr. Long and Dr. Wertz. Prior to its restoration in 1987, made possible by a local benefactor, the building had housed the art department.

1400 Students by 1995

Even before he had quite settled into the corner office on the second floor of Long Hall overlooking the quad in 1989, the College's 14th President, James E. Douthat, began a program to stem a tide of declining admissions.

This task became his first priority, and a new admissions program was incorporated into the strategic plan written that same year.

A key agenda item of Lycoming's Strategic Plan is to increase total enrollment (full and part time students) to 1400 students by 1995. (Enrollment during the 1990-91 academic year was 1,320 full and part-time students.)

To be sure, Lycoming will retain its intimate, small college atmosphere.

But, when the current Strategic Plan was first being prepared in 1989, an analysis of facilities and resources showed that the college could be increased by 150 full-time students with minimal additional expense. Moreover, this could be done while still maintaining the excellent faculty-student ratio that is vital to retaining a distinguished undergraduate experience. These extra students may seem like a relatively small increase, but for a College that relies on tuition for 77% of its operating revenue, 150 students means more than one million dollars in resources that can and are being used to implement new programs, improve faculty salaries and upgrade facilities.

Several policy decisions on the part of the administration have impacted on the admissions program, not the least of which was the decision to continue "need-blind" admission. This means that the College decides on each applicant solely on his or her academic abilities—without considering the student's ability to pay.

Lycoming's need-blind admissions policy coupled with the decision to increase the overall enrollment has necessitated an increase in financial aid from $2.8 million in 1989 to $3.5 million for the coming year. Financial aid is supported, in large part, from endowment income and contributions to the College's Annual Fund drive which has placed additional pressure on the College's Development Office.

With sister colleges working very hard to woo some of the same

An enthusiastic "can-do" manager with impressive credentials, Spencer began to orchestrate a total college program to increase Lycoming's annual applicant pool.

"One of our problems in the past," says Spencer, "may have been that we simply undersold ourselves. Lycoming is a top-notch liberal arts college with excellent facilities and a quality faculty, and we need to better tell our story."

Under Spencer's guidance, the College put together a new series of award-winning, professionally designed admissions literature that tells Lycoming's unique story to potential students in a compelling way.

The Office of Admissions increased its staff to service high schools in areas that had not been visited in a number of years and to widen Lycoming's traditional drawing area to include New England and upstate New York in addition to Pennsylvania, New Jersey and suburban New York City.

Spencer is quick to point out that the admissions program is a total College effort involving all of the Lycoming family: trustees, faculty, coaches, students and alumni.

In addition, he notes,

"Lycoming's new president has brought a new vision that has been a motivating force."

President Douthat, however, credits hard work of the Admissions

Office, the cooperation of faculty and staff and the College's reputation for excellent teaching with the progress. That reputation, he notes, provides the foundation for any successful admissions program.

applicants, Spencer elicited the support of faculty members in extending Lycoming's traditional warmth to key applicants through a personal call or follow-up note.

Lycoming gained an additional boost this past year when its excellence was nationally recognized in three separate instances. U. S. News & World Report selected Lycoming as one of the top 10 regional liberal arts colleges in the Northeast. In an article in the summer issue of the College Board Review magazine, Lycoming was cited by David W. Breneman at the Brookings Institution as one of only 212 "true liberal arts" institutions in the country.

In addition, Lycoming received national television exposure as a finalist in the NCAA Division III national football championship.

Lycoming's strong, nationally recognized sports program has been made stronger with the addition of a men's and women's swim coach and a men's soccer coach. These additional sports programs give the College new ways to appeal to the special interests of potential students.

Alan Himes '57 was one of several alumni to host receptions for potential students.

Certainly, one of the most important resources the College has for recruitment is its alumni. Alumni have helped the Office of Admissions by hosting numerous small receptions for potential applicants in their home areas. Alumni living at some distance from the College have also participated in "College Day" programs at local high schools, representing Lycoming at a recruitment event that the admissions staff would not be able to attend.

Last year, the admissions staff, comprised largely of highly motivated recent Lycoming graduates, visited 625 high schools, held 12 area receptions and hosted 6 campus-based recruitment events ranging from "Sundaes on Sunday," to a Pre-College Conference.

"In my 16 years, this is the best admissions and financial aid staff I have ever worked with, in terms of work ethic, love of institution and love of job," says Spencer.

Lycoming's goal is not merely numbers. The admissions program is making a special effort to increase the ethnic and cultural diversity of the study body in order to enrich the total educational experience of Lycoming students.

The fall's incoming class will include international students from Angola, Brazil, China, India and Switzerland. In addition, 3% of the new students will represent ethnic minorities. Spencer concedes that this percentage may be considered as small when viewed in a national context, but it represents an important and progressive recent trend for Lycoming.

One way this goal of greater diversity is being realized is by developing a network of African-American alumni to assist in the College's efforts to increase the number of African-American students at Lycoming.

Mary Wolf, Assistant Academic Dean for Freshmen

a newly created "Freshman Seminar." Held during the days immediately preceding the fall semester, the seminar introduces students to both the liberal arts and academic life. All incoming freshmen are asked to read in a particular area or study a common topic.

This year, the theme of the Freshman Seminar is "Crossing Thresholds" with readings from an anthology that includes works of Gail Sheehy, Langston Hughes and several other authors on coming of age, self-awareness and appreciating differences in others.

Incoming freshmen discuss these works in small groups with faculty members and begin the process of learning "how to learn" on a college level.

During the critical first semester, the academic success and social adjustment of all freshmen are carefully monitored with counselors quick to give special help where needed.

The program's purpose is not only to retain students, but to maximize the college experience for every student.

While it's too early to judge the results of this new effort, there is every expectation that it will prove to be highly successful.

Retaining Students

Hand-in-hand with a new more vigorous admissions program is a plan for the retention of enrolled students.

Typically, the retention rate between the freshman and sophomore year at Lycoming ranges from 75% to 82%, a figure that while above the national average is one that the College wants to improve.

The recently established "Freshman Year" program is headed by a new Assistant Academic Dean for Freshmen, Mary Wolf. The position and program are being funded for a two-year period by the Pitcairn-Crabbe Foundation in response to Lycoming's plan to help students better adjust to college.

In addition to the traditional parent-student orientation program held during the summer, the "Freshman Year" program includes

It was a beautiful Commencement day. Parents, as they always do, exchanged some thoughts about their sons' and daughters' college experience.

"Four years ago, I never thought we'd see this day," confided one parent. "In the first months our son was here, he couldn't seem to find a direction. But then, several faculty members took a special interest in him and something clicked."

That "click" may well be the essence of the Lycoming College experience.

The significant difference between Lycoming College as a small private institution and larger, public institutions, explains President James E. Douthat, lies not merely in the curriculum or the faculty. Other colleges and universities offer similar courses and their teaching faculty may have similar preparation. The real difference lies in the "delivery system," Dr. Douthat contends—in the special student-teacher relationship and supportive educational atmosphere that exists at Lycoming.

This is what differentiates Lycoming. It is our "unique selling point" and one that we believe will continue to help the College gain more regional and national recognition.

Non-traditional Adult Students Come to Lycoming College

By: Karen Meier '91

They are showing up in classrooms all across the country. They compose a large percentage of the top students in those classes. They are the "adult" learners, older than the traditional college student.

According to the National University Continuing Education Association, 5.7 million adults attended college last year, constituting about 40% of all college enrollees. These students will be the majority in college classrooms nationwide during the next decade.

So who are these adults and why are they going to college now? According to Dr. Bruce Weaver, whose business department is one with a number of these adult students, the group is quite diversified. Some are adults who want to get ahead in their career and cannot do it without a degree. Weaver says, "It used to be that you could work your way up through the ranks, slowly but surely. Nowadays, though, if you don't have a degree, you are stopped at a certain level, no matter how good you are. So, people are coming back for the degree."

Frank Clark, a Senior Process Technician at ALCAN Cable, is completing a business degree for career advancement.

This situation is the case with Frank Clark, a 39 year-old senior process technician for Alcan Cable in Williamsport. Clark is currently a senior at Lycoming, taking two classes a semester. "I was getting bored with what I was doing and I wanted to advance within the company. I majored in business because you can only make so many moves as an engineer, and then you need a business background. Alcan even pays for my classes."

Another major category of adults attending Lycoming is women who have not worked outside the home.

Diane Himes is 50 and majoring in English at Lycoming. She had attended Lycoming from 1958 to 1960, when she took a two-year medical technician course of study. She got married then and chose to remain at home. "I came back because I want to be a writer and I didn't feel I had as good a grounding as I needed," says Himes with a chuckle. "There is one difference between other adult students and myself," she notes. "Most students are here to prepare for careers. I, however, am preparing for retirement."

Diane Himes is majoring in English so she can pursue a writing career in her retirement.

A third category of adult students are people who want to change careers.

Bill Rathjen, 24, got his degree in criminal justice and art from Lycoming in 1987, but has now come back for his teaching certification in elementary education. "After being in the world for two years, I decided there was something else I would rather be doing—teaching," he explains.

Bill Rathjen '87 has returned to Lycoming for his teaching certificate.

The education department, which has the largest number of adult students at Lycoming College, has made special accommodations for these students. The department's Intern Program allows an adult student to go into teaching, immediately, if a district will employ them. John Conrad, chair of the department, cites the flexibility of the College. "Over a two-year period, every one of our classes is offered in the evening. We also offer courses in the summer that we normally would not have thought of offering during the summer term."

Robin Weir, a nursing student, finds that "you can really get bogged down trying to juggle work, school and family; but, it's worth it."

Teaching excellence is what brought Robin Weir, a 29 year-old nursing student, to Lycoming.

CAMPUS NOTES

Anne Harris Katz Named New Dean of College

Dr. Anne Harris Katz

In a six-month, nationwide search that included over 100 applicants and more than 25 highly qualified candidates, Dr. Anne Harris Katz has been chosen to become Lycoming's new Dean of the College and begins her occupancy of the corner office on July 1, 1991.

The Dean of the College is Lycoming's second highest administrative office with responsibilities for curriculum development, faculty staffing, scheduling and library resources.

Dr. Katz holds a B.S. in biology from Ursinus College and an M.S. and Ph.D. in Animal Physiology from the University of Massachusetts. She has held positions at Fordham University, College of St. Elizabeth, Drew University and Indiana University of Pennsylvania where she most recently served as Associate Dean of Academic Affairs.

Dr. Katz is listed in Who's Who of the East and Who's Who in Frontier Science and Technology. Two areas of special interest and research include environmental pollution and endocrinology.

Her husband, Harvey M. Katz, is a biological consultant who works with environmental concerns. Both are avid aviators; Dr. Katz is currently preparing for her pilot's license.

Dr. Robert Falk, who served as Acting Dean of the College this past year, will return to the Theatre Department.

Trustees Approve $20.8 Million Budget for 1991-92

Meeting in April, the Board of Trustees approved a $20,862,932 operating budget for 1991-92. This record budget includes a $3.5 million allocation for student scholarship assistance.

The Board elected as officers for the 1991-92 term: Robert L. Shangraw '58, chairman; Richard W. DeWald '61, vice-chairman;

Leo Calistri '59, secretary and Ann S. Pepperman, assistant secretary.

The Board also elevated three individuals to the status of Trustee Emeritus: W. Gibbs McKenney '37, Baltimore, MD; Fred A. Pennington '32, Mechanicsburg, PA; and Marguerite Gehron Rich '42, Woolrich, PA.

New Director of College Relations

Molly Costello

Molly Costello has been named Director of College Relations, bringing to the office more than 20 years' experience in advertising, marketing and public relations.

A graduate of Mount Holyoke College, she studied at Boston University's Graduate School of Public Communications and holds an M.B.A. degree from Southeastern Massachusetts University.

She was most recently with Southeastern Advertising, Inc., a Massachusetts marketing and research firm.

The Office of College Relations oversees the school's public relations and publishes the Lycoming Quarterly.

President Douhat presents this year's teaching awards to two faculty members: Dr. Barbara Buedel (left), Assistant Professor of Spanish, who received the Junior Faculty Award (awarded to a member of the faculty having the status of instructor or assistant professor), and Dr. Michael Roskin, Professor and Chair of Political Science, who received the Senior Faculty Award (awarded to a member of the faculty having the status of associate or full professor).

Students Volunteer 2,754 Hours

Between classes, studying, and laundry; college students admittedly have little free time. Yet this year, Lycoming students volunteered a total of 2,754 hours—the equivalent of more than 68 work weeks—to helping others. The sixty-one different projects ranged from serving as “big brothers” and “big sisters” for local youth to spending spring vacation repairing homes in hurricane-torn Sumter, SC.

The College encourages fraternities and sororities to embark on community service projects through a unique program whereby the Greeks earn “credits” toward their liability insurance.

The results have been impressive. The College is undertaking a program of tracking the community service of its students and further encouraging students' service activities.

Sorority Supports Scholarship for Brandy

Gamnia Delta Sigma remembered their sister, Brandy Sudol (who lost her fight with cancer on February 23, 1990) by helping to fund a scholarship in her name. The sorority raised $2,260.57 through an imaginative auction that included five tickets to the President's Box for the Lycoming home football game donated by Dr. James Douhat; a weekend sailing trip on the Chesapeake, courtesy of Dr. Robert Falk; a canoe trip for eight with gourmet luncheon prepared by Ms. Deb Weaver, Manager of Residence Hall Operations; and a camping trip under the stars with blueberry breakfast served by Cate Wild, Assistant Instructional Services Librarian.

When the fund reaches $10,000, the income will be awarded to a deserving student, majoring in nursing or a science. Contributions to this fund can be made through the Development Office.

New Hoover Award Recognizes Community Service

For the first time this year, the College honored a graduating senior who has demonstrated a personal commitment to serving less fortunate citizens in Greater Williamsport or their own community. The prize, endowed by Gary Hoover '78, in honor of his mother, Helen R. Hoover, was presented to Jeannine Malkiewicz of West Milford, NJ.

Helen R. Hoover and son, Gary Hoover '78, congratulate Jeannine Malkiewicz of West Milford, NJ, the first recipient of the Hoover Prize for community service.

FACULTY NOTES

Dr. Michael G. Roskin

Dr. David Rife

Jerry D. Allen

Roskin to Teach at War College

DR. MICHAEL G. ROSKIN, Professor and Chair of the Political Science Department, is taking a leave of absence for the 1991-92 academic year to teach at the U.S. Army War College in Carlisle, PA. Roskin was invited to be one of two Visiting Professors at the institution which trains Army lieutenant colonels.

Roskin has been on the Lycoming faculty since 1972. He holds an A.B. from the University of California at Berkeley; M.A. from UCLA and a Ph.D. from The American University. Dr. Roskin's fifth book, Rebirth of East Europe, was released in January of this year.

Sabbatical and Promotion for Dr. Rife

DR. DAVID RIFE has been granted a sabbatical for the fall semester of 1991. Dr. Rife, who teaches courses in modern fiction, American literature and the modern mystery novel, will be doing original research on the literary allusions in the hardboiled private eye novels of four of the foremost writers in this genre: Robert Parker, James Crumley, Michael Malone and Lawrence Sanders.

Dr. Rife has also been made a Full Professor in Lycoming's English department. Rife, who has been on the Lycoming faculty since 1970, has a B.A. degree from the University of Florida, and M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Southern Illinois University.

Allen to Travel to U.S.S.R.

JERRY D. ALLEN, Associate Professor of Theatre, has been granted a sabbatical for the fall of 1991. Mr. Allen, who teaches the technical theater courses on costume and set design at Lycoming, will be traveling to the Soviet Republic of Georgia with the Racine (Wisconsin) Theatre where he will be working with his Soviet counterparts to stage the American play Still the Mountain Wind at the Polytechnical Institute of Tbilisi.

His wife, Kathleen, who has appeared in Lycoming productions, will be joining him for two weeks. Allen also plans to travel in Russia and Poland.

Mr. Allen holds a B.F.A. and M.F.A. from Utah State University and has been on the Lycoming faculty since 1984.

RECENT ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE FACULTY

DR. PENELOPE AUSTIN has a poem, "Dancing After Oswiecim" in the current issue of The Kenyon Review, and another poem, "Distillation," is being published in The Journal.

DR. BERNARD BALLEWEG was a finalist in the Outstanding Young Educator competition sponsored by the Williamsport Jaycees. Bernie was recognized for his outstanding teaching and community volunteer work.

MS. SUSAN BEIDLER was elected vice president of the Board of Trustees of PALINET, the regional library network that assists libraries and information centers in delivering high quality, cost-effective services for information access, resource sharing and interlibrary cooperation.

A manuscript of DR. JACK DIEHL's research on the inhibition of bacterial growth has been accepted by The Journal of the Pennsylvania Academy of Science for publication. He also presented his recent research, resulting in the development of a method for quantitative carbohydrate analysis, at the 67th Annual Meeting of the Pennsylvania Academy of Science in April 1991.

DR. DAVID FRANZ gave a workshop presentation at Project Kaleidoscope, a National Colloquium held at the National Academy of Sciences in February in Washington, DC. Project Kaleidoscope focused on "What Works: Building National Science Communities." Dr. Franz teamed with J. Richard Fruth, of Hayes/Large Architects, to present the planning, design and utilization of our new Heim Biology and Chemistry Building.

An article by Dr. Franz was published in the January 1991 issue of the Journal of Chemical Education. Entitled "Superoxide Dismutase and the Briggs-Rauscher Reaction," the article appeared as the featured Test Demonstration for the month.

He has been selected to participate in the NSF-supported Summer Research Program in Chemical Analysis at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville. Dr. Franz will collaborate with Dr. Earl Wehry of UTK in the gas chromatographic investigation of the absorption of polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons on coal fly ash surfaces. The research is also supported by a grant from the Office of Energy Research, U.S. Department of Energy.

DR. AMY GOLAHNY's article, "Rembrandt's Ruts and Moroni's Bearded Man" appeared in the journal Source: Notes in the History of Art, Fall 1990.

MRS. MARGARET GRAY-VICKREY has been selected to share the Dychtewald Student Award from the University of Akron. This award, presented annually to a student enrolled in a gerontology or related program who has demonstrated a commitment to the field through active involvement as an intern, volunteer, or paid employee in an aging program.

Tenure Granted

Tenure has been granted to three faculty members: DR. BERNARD BALLEWEG, Assistant Professor of Psychology; MICHELLE S. FICCA, Assistant Professor of Nursing; and DR. MEHRDAD MADRESEHEE, Assistant Professor in Economics.

Tenure, which is the equivalent of a career-long contract, is granted to outstanding faculty members who have demonstrated both superior scholarship and teaching talent.

Dr. Balleweg joined the faculty in 1985 and has a B.S. degree from Colorado State University and M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Montana.

Ms. Ficca has been a member of the Nursing Department faculty since 1985 and has a B.S. degree from Stroudsburg University and an M.A. degree from Pennsylvania State University. She was also promoted from Instructor to Assistant Professor of Nursing.

Dr. Madresehee joined the Economics Department in 1986. He holds a B.S. from the University of Tehran; M.S. from the National University of Iran; M.S. from the University of Idaho and a Ph.D. from Washington State University.

Dr. Bernard Balleweg

Michelle S. Ficca

Dr. Mehrdad Madresehee

Dr. Jack D. Diehl

Other Promotions

DR. JACK D. DIEHL has been made a Full Professor in Lycoming's Biology Department. Diehl, who has been on the Lycoming faculty since 1971, has B.S. and M.A. degrees from Sam Houston University in Texas and M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Connecticut.

DR. KATHLEEN PAGANA has been promoted to Associate Professor in the College's Nursing Department. Dr. Pagana, who joined the faculty in 1982, has a B.S.N. from the University of Maryland and M.S.N. and Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania.

DR. KATHRYN RYAN has been promoted to Associate Professor in the Psychology Department. Dr. Ryan holds a B.S. degree from the University of Illinois and M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Pittsburgh. She has been on the Lycoming faculty since 1981.

Dr. Kathryn Ryan

Ms. Gray-Vickrey, who is on leave from Lycoming College to pursue her doctorate at the University at Buffalo, also received both a teaching award for excellence in teaching graduate students and a prize for her paper, "The Lived Experience of Being a Caregiver for a Family Member with Alzheimer's Disease: A Phenomenological Study."

DR. RACHAEL HUNGERFORD participated as a presenter at a Language Arts Research Round Table, held during the 80th Annual Convention of the National Council of Teachers of English in Atlanta during November, 1990. Her research topic was "Secondary Worlds: Imagination and Meaning Creation."

The Lycoming College Library also displayed her Teaching Reading in the Elementary School students' Big Books. These books, made by the students, improve the commercially available Big Books in that they provide large enough print for an entire class to read and do not overwhelm the young child with large blocks of print unrelieved by illustration.

MRS. JANET HURLBERT is the chair for 1990-91 of the West Branch Chapter of the Pennsylvania Library Association and will serve on the Pennsylvania Library Association's Executive Board. She was also appointed to PLA's Administrative Service Committee.

MS. DIANE JANDA performed as a guest conductor of the annual Lycoming County Band Festival held at Muncy High School in December. The festival featured 128 students from eight area high schools who participated in an intensive weekend of rehearsals culminating in a public concert.

DR. PAUL MacKENZIE has been accepted for membership in the newly formed Theodor Fontane Gesellschaft in Potsdam, Germany. The society fosters study of the life and works of the great Berlin novelist from the late 19th century.

A paper by DR. MEHRDAD MADRESEHEE entitled "Making an Untestable International Trade Theory Testable: Replacing the Autarky Factor Prices with the Corresponding Post-Trade Prices" was recently presented at the annual convention of the Eastern Economic Association in Pittsburgh.

George E. Reedy

"We are on the verge of resurrecting the Renaissance Man."

"Many courses that have been labelled 'impractical'—especially in the fields of philosophy—will turn out to be your mainstays."

"The age of the generalist is returning. The Liberal Arts will be restored to the preeminence they have had in the past."

Dr. Madresehee was also discussant for two papers in Urban/Regional Economics.

A gallery showing of MS. DEIRDRE MONK's hand-colored photographs was held in the Lycoming College Art Gallery from January 10-30. Artwork in this exhibition has been supported by grants from Arts Midwest (NEA) and the Ohio Arts Council.

A developmental writing textbook, Process, Purpose, Practice: A Basic Writer's Guide by DR. CAROLE MOSES, was published in December by D. C. Heath.

A chapter of DR. KATHLEEN

PAGANA'S book entitled "Diagnostic Procedures" was published in the textbook, Clinical Nursing Skills and Techniques, A. Perry & P. Potter, C. V. Mosby Co., 1990. She was also invited to join the Convention Planning Committee for the National League for Nursing's Society for Research in Nursing Education.

She presented a paper entitled "A Longitudinal Study of Hardiness" at the Ninth Annual Meeting for The Society for Research in Nursing Education held in February. She will also serve as chairperson for the 1992 Research Conference.

MS. NANCY ROBERT's paper, "Prospects and Problems in International Business for North Central Pennsylvania," was presented at the International Academy of Management and Marketing annual conference held in Detroit in April 1991.

MR. ROGER SHIPLEY has given illustrated lectures entitled "Roesen Revisited" to the following organizations: Lycoming County Historical Museum, Women's Club, Williamsport Rotary Club, Greater Williamsport Community Arts Council's annual meeting and the Bald Eagle Art League. These lectures coincide with the publication of the Williamsport Community Arts Council's book "Severin Roesen."

MR. MICHAEL SMITH published a magazine supplement on audiotex and videotex technologies in the January 26 package of Editor and Publisher magazine. The supplement takes an in-depth look at the emerging technologies facing newspapers across the nation.

His article, "Language Use Affects Coverage of People with Disabilities," was in the Winter 1991 edition of Journalism Educator, a scholarly journal for journalism and mass communication professors. The refereed article examined language used by newspapers in stories on people with disabilities.

DR. ROBERT VAN VOORST moderated a panel discussion on the topic, "The Contribution of Confucianism to Western Societies," at a plenary session during the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Sociological Society, held at the University of Scranton the fall of 1990.

DR. STAN WILK's book, Humanistic Anthropology, has been published by the University of Tennessee Press.

DR. MEL ZIMMERMAN co-instructed a workshop titled "Wastewater Biology: The Microlife" at the Ogontz Campus of Penn State. This workshop was the fourth in a series of six co-sponsored by Penn State and the Water Pollution Control Federation. The workshop was based, in part, on a special publication of the Water Pollution Control Federation in which Dr. Zimmerman has two chapters.

In March, he spoke on "Aspects of Water Pollution—Acid Rain to Sewage" at the Public Forum.

Poets and Potential Poets Meet in Reading Series

David Baker

Poet David Baker reads from his own poetry as part of the Poetry Reading Series supported by the Pennsylvania Humanities Council and Lycoming College.

Baker, who gave a reading in March, is poetry editor of The Kenyon Review, one of the major literary magazines in the country, and teaches at Denison University in Ohio.

The program brought four of America's brightest poets to the campus, allowing creative writing students as well as other members of the Lycoming family to meet these poets and discuss poetry with them "one-on-one."

Says Dr. Penelope Austin, coordinator for the reading series and Director of the Creative Writing Program, "it's good for poetry and good for students."

Board Room is Named

The Board Room in the John W. Long Administration Building has been named the W. Gibbs McKenney Board Room. McKenney (right), a Baltimore attorney, served as chairman of Lycoming's Board from 1976 to 1984. He was graduated from Lycoming's predecessor institution, Williamsport Dickinson Seminary and Junior College, in 1937. At left, Robert L. Shangraw, Chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Special Honors

American Religious Life Contemplated in Ewing Lecture Series

The man many believe to be the best known commentator on religion in America today, was the featured speaker in this year's Ewing Lecture.

Dr. Martin E. Marty, Professor of Church History at the University of Chicago, spoke on the "20th Century American Religious Scene: Important Conflicts/Few Dead Bodies," lacing his presentation with surprising facts about American conflicts and religion.

Americans, he noted, are too preoccupied with life to think about religion. "The secular life gets you through Wall Street very well, but it doesn't get you through a malignant tumor very well," comments Marty.

"The Robert H. Ewing Lectures in the Humanities" is supported by a fund established through the generosity of former students and friends of the late Prof. Robert H. Ewing, Professor Emeritus of

“1990-91? I Felt It Was a Good Year!” - Girardi

Maybe it wasn't fair to greet Athletic Director Frank Girardi at 8:30 AM on a mid-May morning with a loaded question as he returned to his office from his “opening of the day cup of coffee.”

“Frank, how would you assess 1990-91 from the athletic director's chair?”

“1990-91? I felt it was a good year!” replied Frank Girardi in a quick one-liner summation.

That is the mark of Girardi, that ever present positiveness about those 17 NCAA recognized athletic programs that fall under his guidance as athletic director.

“Maybe the best way to support my feeling is to point out that about one-third of the college community (students) were participants in at least one of those programs. In each of the three periods (fall, winter, spring), we had kids who were named All-MAC (Middle Atlantic Conference) for their sport. Several others carried Academic All-MAC honors which translates into their being able to maintain a 3.4 or better GPA while participating in athletics, and let's not forget that a couple of others gained All-American recognition,” said Girardi as he began to warm up to the “cold” question asked.

“What about W's and L's, Frank,” was the next question posed.

“What about them?”, countered Girardi. “They are important. As a coach, I coach to win, that's why we keep score. I think any coach of any program should strive for a goal of having a winning season. While we have those programs that came away with losing records this past season, I can't find one coach in our system who did not do everything possible to upgrade their sport.”

“What about your ‘rookie’ people brought into the program last summer as full time coaches?” was a question asked in reference to the placement of Rob Eaton (soccer/golf), Jay Kramer (swimming/cross country) and Suzanne Helfant (head softball/assistant women's basketball).

“I am extremely pleased! Pleased with the opportunity to have been given the green light to hire in that fashion and pleased with the selections. All three came in with enthusiasm, positive attitudes and we are already seeing the results of their efforts toward an even more promising future in their sports,” said Girardi. “Besides their coaching during their season, all three have been able to make contact and recruit several great looking kids to our campus.”

It is noted that Lycoming's veteran coaches Budd Whitehill, Dutch Burch and Girardi marked milestones of their own over the year. Whitehill (35th season) became Lycoming's first national Hall of Famer when he was inducted into the NCAA Small College Wrestling Hall of Fame. Burch (29th season) went over the 300 win mark with the Warrior basketball program. The Girardi (19th season) football program produced the greatest Lycoming season ever (12-1-0) in completing the 16th consecutive winning year by playing in the NCAA Division III championship game.

“Yep, now that I have a chance to think about it, 1990-91 was better than a good year. It was a very good year! One to build on,” said Girardi.

Not a bad assessment for one caught unprepared.

Warriors Ranked Seventh By Sporting News in Pre-Season Poll; Small and Kenney on SN All-American Team

The Sporting News, one of America's most read and popular sports publication, has notified Coach Frank Girardi that his Warriors have been ranked seventh in the Division III football nation for the upcoming 1991 season.

Girardi has said that his 1991 Warriors, after losing 10 starters from the lineup he posted for the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl, has a solid nucleus returning for the new season.

"Being chosen seventh by The Sporting News is great! It's nice to have your program recognized like that, and we appreciated hearing that news."

Girardi was also happy to hear that The Sporting News had selected senior linebacker Bill Small (Northeast Catholic/Philadelphia, PA) and offensive lineman Darrin Kenney (Archbishop Wood/Southampton, PA) on their first team pre-season All-American roster.

This is the third All-American listing for Small and the first for Kenney. Their Warrior peers have elected them and senior quarterback Ed Dougherty (Cardinal O'Hara/Broomall, PA) as tri-captains for 1991. Girardi has received word that the record-setting Dougherty has been named Pennsylvania's pre-season Division III Player of The Year by the Pennsylvania Football Report magazine. This is the second year that the Lycoming QB has been so honored.

"These three kids deserve all of these honors they can get. The election as captains by their teammates gives an indication of the respect they carry. We (the coaches) know that we will get solid leadership from them throughout the season," said Girardi.

Ten Lycoming Winter Athletes Named Academic All-MAC

The Middle Atlantic Conference announced that ten Lycoming athletes from the winter sports season were part of the All-Academic Honor Roll.

Coach Jay Kramer's combined men's and women's swim program headed the list with five selections. Four more represented Coach Jim Orr's Lady Warrior basketball program and junior Chad Bailey (Mifflinburg, PA) came from Dutch Burch's Warrior basketball program.

Susan Vilello (Jr./Jersey Shore, PA/3.88 Business Management), Andrea Pickles (So./N. Andover, MA/3.86 History), Mike Macchione (Sr./Washington Twp., NJ/3.85 Math and Astronomy), Holly Jones (So./Keuka Park, NY/3.70 General Studies) and Amy Atkinson (Jr./York, PA/3.48 Nursing) were the swimmers named.

Vilello, Macchione and Atkinson were making their second appearance on the honor roll.

Tamme Bodai (Jr./Easton, PA/3.67 Psychology), Liz Evans (Jr./Camp Hill, PA/3.47 Psychology and Biology), Annette Bieber (Jr./Turbotville, PA/3.46 Spanish) and Lois Nice (So./Jersey Shore, PA/3.61 General Studies) played for the Lady Warrior basketball program.

Bailey, the junior point guard for the Warriors, carries a 3.59 GPA in Mathematics.

The Middle Atlantic Conference Sports Information Directors are permitted to nominate athletes "who are upperclassmen, starters or major reserves and whose GPA's are 3.4 or higher."

Reed and Bauman Gain Post Season Softball Honors

Senior Deb Reed (Trevorton, PA) and junior Amy Bauman (Mill Hall, PA) have received special post season honors from the Middle Atlantic Conference following the MAC softball season.

Reed has been named to the Academic All-MAC and Bauman was selected by the coaches as the first team shortstop in the Northern Division.

Reed, who has been Lycoming's MVP for the two seasons Lycoming has fielded a softball program, pitched her way to a 6-5 record as part of the 11-14 overall (4-6 MAC) record posted by the Lady Warriors this spring.

Her 3.4 plus academic average in the field of psychology placed her on the Academic All-MAC.

"Playing under duress and producing what she did is what made her our MVP," said Coach Suzanne Helfant.

Reed opened the pre-season period with a tear in her pitching arm bicep muscle that really never healed during the course of the season. She was also diagnosed as having "mono" and pitched the latter part of the season with a special pad covering her swollen spleen.

Bauman, a highly talented female athlete, made her collegiate softball debut so outstanding that the MAC coaching fraternity selected her as their all star shortstop.

She led Lycoming in hitting with a .329 average based on 24 base hits for 73 at bats. Bauman drove in 13, scored 13 and had 10 stolen bases. Maybe her most amazing statistic is the one strike-out in those 73 official at bats.

Schneck Becomes Wrestling All-American

Sophomore Kurt Schneck (Spring Grove, PA) has become part of "Budd's Wall" in the office of Coach Budd Whitehill's Athletic Department office.

Translated, that means that Schneck has joined 35 other Lycoming College wrestlers who carry NCAA recognized All-American credentials.

The 126-pound second year wrestler gained his "marks" with an eighth place finish at the 1991 Small College tournament held at Augustana College (Rock Island, IL) in March.

The national honor was part of Schneck's 24-6-0 season which saw him win three regular season tournament titles (SUNY-Binghamton, York Spartan and the F and M DIP) plus his second consecutive Middle Atlantic Conference weight class title. Over his first two seasons, Schneck has put together a 45-10-1 overall record.

Budd's Wall holds a picture of every Warrior wrestler who has gained All-American honors over the 35 wrestling seasons at Lycoming. Included is a picture of the late Art Oraschin; Schneck was the first recipient of the Art Oraschin Memorial Award during the regular season.

"Budd's Wall" holds a picture of every Warrior wrestler who has gained All-American honors over the 35 wrestling seasons at Lycoming.

Aiken, Solomon and Evans Sports Award Winners

Adrienne Aiken (Hollidaysburg, PA), Pete Solomon (Sunbury, PA) and Elizabeth Evans (Camp Hill, PA) were the major sports award winners for the 1990-91 college term. The three were honored during the Annual Lycoming College Honors Convocation on May 5th.

Aiken's name will be added to the Pocohantas Award after she rewrote a fairly large part of the Lady Warrior basketball record book as a four-year varsity starter. She leaves Lycoming holding or sharing seven women's basketball records. Her single season scoring mark of 428 points (1988-89) was a big boost toward the career scoring record of 1,469 points. The 5'9" forward's two other records came from her 840 career rebounds and 266 foul shots made. Aiken tied records in single season foul shots made (90), single season fouls attempted (133) and career foul attempts (346).

The 1991 Tomahawk Award belongs to Solomon after a brilliant four-year wrestling career record of 70-13-4. That included a 4-0 record in capturing the 142-pound weight class championship at the Middle Atlantics.

The Warriors' team captain was the recipient of the Andy Bergesen Award earlier in the season. The Bergesen is by team vote "for the person on the team that is demonstrating outstanding wrestling and team leadership."

Evans was named to the 1991 Sol "Woody" Wolfe Award as the "most improved Lycoming athlete after their junior season."

Evans, an academic All-MAC in two sports (volleyball/basketball) gained the Wolfe Award for her continued progress in Jim Orr's Lady Warriors basketball program. She scored a total of 124 points for her first two seasons. As a junior, Evans picked up the pace with a 242 point effort. She also contributed a career best 152 rebounds to the Lycoming season.

Do You Work for a Matching Gift Company?

More than 1,000 employers in the United States offer matching gifts to colleges and universities as a fringe benefit to their employees. Some companies match their workers' gifts dollar-for-dollar; some match on an even greater basis.

Often, companies will match gifts made to higher education by alumni spouses.

To know whether or not your company participates, check with your personnel office or contact the Development Office at Lycoming College, Williamsport, PA 17701-5192, and request the brochure, "Double Your Dollar."

Last year alone, Lycoming received more than $110,000 in gifts from companies with matching gift programs.

Class of '91
Sets Pledge

Dr. James Douhat accepts a big check from Margaret Hayden, fundraising chair, and Diane DeNisco, class president. This year's senior class set a new record as they successfully completed their project to establish a class scholarship. With more than $14,600 pledged by some 100 members of the Class, the Class of 1991 surpassed a previous record set by the Class of 1988.

It is anticipated that the award will be endowed fully within four or five years.

According to Ralph Zeigler, Director of Development for Annual Support, setting up a class scholarship fund is a tradition that goes back nearly 20 years.

Here's a Tax Break That's Available in 1991 Only

A reminder to wealthier alumni who may be contemplating charitable contributions of tangible property. This year only, you can make such donations and deduct the full appreciated value on your tax return without fear that the appreciation will be treated as a "preference item," for alternative minimum tax purposes.

The art work must represent long-term gain and must be given to a charity that will use it in a way that is in keeping with the charity's tax-exempt purpose.

If the value of the gift exceeds your charitable-contribution limit for the year of 30 percent of 1991 adjusted gross income, the excess can be carried over and applied in future years; it will still be considered a non-preference item then—as long as the gift is made in 1991.

Remembering Us In Your Will

There are many different ways to provide for a charitable institution or organization in your Will. You may wish to consider an outright bequest of cash, stock or other property. Or, you may prefer a plan that would first provide for the benefit of your family members during their lifetimes, after which time the designated assets would be distributed to us. It is also possible to name us as a contingent beneficiary. For example, you may provide for us to receive cash or other property from your estate only if others named in your Will are not living at the time of your death.

Equipment Grant Improves Language Laboratory

"Bon jour," "Guten Tag," and "Buenos días" will have new clarity on the Lycoming College campus as the language laboratory receives extensive renovation and updating of equipment, thanks to a recent grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Education.

The $33,226 equipment grant received in late April allows Lycoming not only to replace out-of-date, reel-to-reel recorders with cassette models, but also to enhance the laboratory with other multi-media and electronic equipment, such as video and film projection. Integrated with language and its sounds, video more fully introduces to students the people of the world and their cultures.

The facility is being designed as a combination classroom and laboratory and will be adaptable to future additions, such as laser disc players and computers.

English I know! Where can I go?

LEIGH STOECKER '74 answered that question in her keynote address at the "Youth Seminar, 1991," sponsored by the Williamsport Rotary Club this past April.

Also participating in the Youth Seminar were: Dr. Emily Jensen, Professor of English and Department Chair; Dr. David Rife, Professor of English; Dr. Carole Moses, Dr. Penelope Austin, and Dr. G. W. Hawkes, Assistant Professors of English at Lycoming.

Leigh, who was an English major, is currently a free-lance marketing consultant in West Newbury, Massachusetts. Upon graduation, she worked for the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution at Woods Hole, Massachusetts, where she was editor of a newsletter which published results of ongoing research studies by several hundred oceanographers from around the world.

Commenting on her liberal arts education as preparation for this position, Leigh said, "It proves that a B.A. from Lycoming can equip one to do almost anything."

Her subsequent positions with the Medical Division of Little, Brown and Company, Publishers, and as marketing consultant support that statement.

She and her husband, DOUG SECTOR '74, are the parents of Daniel and Emma. Doug is a specialist in energy conservation and designs heating and cooling systems.

Old Newspapers, New Career of Tim Hughes '74

Old newspapers are not only Tim Hughes' hobby, they are his livelihood. Recently he quit his job of 14 years as a Little League executive to concentrate on his steadily growing business of selling old papers.

Tim Hughes grew up in South Williamsport and graduated from Lycoming in 1975. He always enjoyed collecting "old stuff," beginning like many others with coins. During one flea market visit, however, he was intrigued by the articles and advertisements in an old paper. From there he started picking up old newspapers wherever he could.

He began selling his papers as a sideline business soon after college, watching his profits grow each year. After a decade of debate, he quit his job at Little League and plunged into business on his own.

Now, with an office a few steps from his bedroom filled with the old newspapers he loves, Hughes has no regrets about his change in occupation.

His office is as orderly as any found in a law firm, let alone in the basement of a house. The business has become so large, he needed to entirely computerize it last year. The thousands of newspapers are stored in vaults. The bookshelves are stocked with the history of America including tomes ranging from the Civil War to the "1960s."

Demand for his product has steadily increased over the last 12 years. Competition has never been particularly fierce, only three people in the United States share Hughes' job. The buyers of these old papers are not the elite corps of academicians as might be expected, but "individual history buffs" interested in everything from the Civil War to the Indians, and other people just looking for an old front-page as a wall decoration. Many of his buyers, today, are starting their collection not as hobbies, but as means for investment.

"I had to determine prices strictly by trial and error. There was no market I could work from for old newspapers," Hughes claims when asked about his price catalogue. The catalogue, entitled "Timothy Hughes: rare and early newspapers," reads like a record club brochure for the "Greatest Hits in U.S. History." Papers are grouped under headings like: "Indians!," "Garfield is Dead!," "Surrender of Yorktown-List of Captures!," "Dewey Defeats Truman!" Prices range from typical $10 to $20 papers up to $2350 for a wallpaper issue of a Mississippi paper.

He deals mainly in pre-1885 newspapers for the simple reason that they were printed on a fine mix of lasting linen and rag. The Industrial Revolution began printing on the cheap, disposable paper we still have today. More people could afford the daily news with this paper, a fine example of American industry and democracy for the citizen, but a much lamented process for the collector of old newspapers.

When Hughes shows off his horde, his depth of knowledge about these papers brings them to life. His prize possession is a front page of the Pennsylvania Packet from July 8, 1776, with the complete Declaration of Independence reprinted on it. This paper was borrowed for the Bicentennial of the Constitution's traveling show last year. He owns original Paul Revere engravings printed in the Boston Gazette. Hughes seems even more fond, though, of a page-one portrait of Jesse James staring malevolently enough to justify all the myths surrounding his life.

The newspaper, as a medium in the American culture, is over 300 years old and has been instrumental in creating the status, for better or worse, of hundreds of our heroes. In turning a hobby into a career, Tim Hughes has become the keeper of America's story as it was first told.

With the theme of “Make it Count,” Homecoming 1991 is shaping up to offer alumni a wonderful opportunity to enjoy their alma mater and celebrate the careers of three emeriti faculty who retired recently from their classroom commitments—Jack Hollenback, Bob Rabold and Logan Richmond. These individuals accumulated a combined total of 100 years of service to countless numbers of students. Their careers have made a significant, lasting impact on Lycoming alumni, and now the departments of accounting, business administration and economics have arranged this event to recognize these special people for making a difference; for making a lifetime of professional service count!

All alumni are encouraged to join with the campus community to celebrate Homecoming 1991. Your participation will help make this special event a time to reminisce, renew friendships and recognize faculty who provided a century of service to Lycoming College. Come back to campus on October 11, 12 and 13, 1991, and help “Make it Count!”
